2024 ESG Leadership AWARDS

The ESG Leadership Awards dinner honors organizations that have moved beyond their public sustainability commitments and have integrated sustainability into their business—making a positive impact on the company, stakeholders, society at large, and the environment.

By shining a light on exemplary companies, The Conference Board inspires the broader business community to follow in their footsteps.

Importantly, the dinner will support The Conference Board's programming and publications specifically focused on a key challenge facing corporations today: defining and determining the ROI of ESG.

The programs and publications that stem from this initiative will provide valuable insights on:

- Defining what qualifies as a sustainability initiative
- Determining what kind of ROIs companies want to calculate
- Understanding the purposes and methods of calculating the ROI
- Identifying ways that companies can best communicate, both internally and externally, the ROI of sustainability

J.M. Huber Corporation

Dr. Jennifer Aspen Mason
Executive Vice President and Chief Sustainability Officer

"Employees around the world have embraced our People, Planet, Profit approach to prioritizing workplace safety, health and well-being, minimizing our environmental footprint, and giving back to our communities, all while being profitable and fulfilling our obligations to shareholders."

J.M. Huber Corporation, headquartered in Atlanta, Georgia (US), operates a diverse portfolio of companies: CP Kelco, Huber Engineered Materials, Huber Engineered Woods, and Huber Resources Corp.

With approximately 5,000 employees working from locations around the world, our businesses create products used in a broad range of applications including personal care, food and beverage, agricultural nutrients and adjuvants, building materials, flame retardants and smoke suppressants, as well as sustainable forestry services.

Founded in 1883, Huber is one of the largest family-owned companies based in the US.

TCB Benchmarking

Real-Time Data and Analytical Tools

Benchmark your governance, compensation, and sustainability practices using real-time data and customizable analytical tools.

TCB Benchmarking enhances The Conference Board membership with granular disclosure data, time-saving tools, and customizable reports. Visualize emerging trends, screen for disclosure examples, and track how your company's reporting practices compare to your peers and the market. TCB Benchmarking was developed — and is used — by TCB researchers to document and promote corporate transparency. Unlike for-profit ESG rating services, our platform provides impartial data you can trust, with direct links to all source material.
